

The Adjudicator takes a recent decision by a TDS Adjudicator and sets out the reasoning behind the decision. The aim of these case studies is to help tenants, landlords and agents better understand how we make our adjudication decisions. The names of the landlords and tenants involved have been removed and this is only a brief summary of the dispute.

When a tenant leaves early

The landlord's claim was for rent due for the period of April to June 2020.

The tenant said that he paid rent up to the end of March 2020, the date on which he left the property and that the landlord had agreed to end the tenancy early and at that point return the deposit to the tenant. The landlord said that no such agreement was reached.

The adjudicator was provided with evidence including the tenancy agreement, a rent statement, emails and WhatsApp screenshots.

The Adjudicator's decision

The parties entered a fixed term tenancy for the period from October 2019 to June 2020. The tenancy agreement did not contain a break clause. While clearly there had been a discussion between the landlord and tenant with regard to the tenancy ending, the evidence provided by the parties was not sufficient to persuade the adjudicator that the landlord had agreed that the tenant could end the tenancy early or that their rent liability ended in March, the date on which the tenant left the property. The evidence also made no reference to the deposit or otherwise. The landlord's claim was successful.

Key points to take away?

- When dealing with a request to end a tenancy early or asking for a tenancy to end early make sure that you have a clear agreement in writing as to the terms on which the tenancy has been agreed to be ended, particularly in relation to any continued rent liability, including what is to happen with the deposit. Once agreement has been reached, obtain a clear acceptance of that agreement
- Provide a copy of the tenancy agreement and any other related evidence of any discussions that you may have had relating to the claim.
- Always provide a detailed rent statement to support any claim for rent for the period of the tenancy, which sets out the name of the tenants, the property address, the period of the tenancy, the period to which the rent relates, the amount due, the date on which it is payable and the date on which it was actually paid.
